

Overarching zonal methods

Loss of local information via aggregation.

Spatial disassociation between variables.

Localised moving-window methods

Retains local information at full granularity.

Preserves contextual relationships between variables.